- 08:00 – 10:00: 2018 MENA Fellows – Introduction session
- 10:15 – 12:00: State Department Office of Religious and Global Affairs
The Office of Religion and Global Affairs (RGA) works to implement the National Strategy on Religious Leader and Faith Community Engagement through three overarching roles for the Department. It has the following mission: advising State Department leadership on policy matters as they relate to religion; supporting Posts and Bureaus in assessing religious dynamics and engaging religious actors; serving as a first point of entry for those seeking to engage the State Department on matters of religion and global affairs. The office collaborates regularly with other government officials and offices. (<https://www.state.gov/s/rga/>)
- 12:30 – 14:00: Luncheon at the World Bank
- 14:00 – 15:30: World Bank
The World Bank counts 189 member countries, staff from more than 170 countries, and offices in over 130 locations. The World Bank works towards reducing poverty and building shared prosperity in developing countries through sustainable solutions. The World Bank focuses its work on development areas such as fiscal policy, climate change, environmental health and pollution management, trade, finance for development, social inclusion, education, youth employment, gender, conflict prevention and more. It provides a wide array of financial products and technical assistance, with the goal to help countries share and apply innovative knowledge and solutions to the challenges they face. (<http://www.worldbank.org>)
- 16:00 – 17:30: International Centre on Nonviolent Conflict
International Centre on Nonviolent Conflict (ICNC) is an independent, non-profit educational foundation that develops and encourages the study and use of civilian-based, non-military strategies aimed at establishing and defending human rights, democratic self-rule and justice worldwide. The purpose of ICNC is to develop and share knowledge related to nonviolent civil resistance and its practice with interested recipients throughout the world. This includes citizens and activists living under conditions of repression, injustice and corruption, and also educators, nongovernmental organizations, media professionals and members of the policy community. (<https://www.nonviolent-conflict.org>)

Tuesday October 2

- 09:00 – 10:30: Chemonics – Centre for Applied Approaches to CVE
The Center for Applied Approaches to Countering Violent Extremism (CVE) aims to identify successful approaches, tools, practices, and methodologies for countering and preventing violent extremism (PVE) based on quantitative and qualitative data as well as Chemonics' extensive experience in this sector. The Center is examining best practices in supporting good governance to counter violent extremism, as well as innovative approaches to monitor and evaluate impact of PVE/CVE programming. Experts in the Center are also exploring the application of social and behavior change communications to PVE/CVE programming and the link between government service delivery and countering violent extremism. (<https://chemonics.com/center-for-applied-approaches-to-cve/>)

- 11:00 – 12:30: United States Institute of Peace
The United States Institute of Peace (USIP) works to prevent, mitigate, and resolve violent conflict around the world. USIP does this by engaging directly in conflict zones and by providing analysis, education, and resources to those working for peace. Created by Congress in 1984 as an independent, nonpartisan, federally funded organization, USIP's more than 300 staff works at the Institute's D.C. headquarters, and on the ground in the world's most dangerous regions. - 14:30 – 16:00: Quilliam International Created in 2007, Quilliam is a London-based think tank that focuses on counter-extremism and lobbies government and public institutions for more nuanced policies regarding Islam and on the need for greater democracy in the Muslim world whilst empowering moderate Muslim voices. At the time of its launch Quilliam published a policy proposal for the British government and journalists, in which it suggested that rehabilitation centres should be established where extremists could be deradicalised. These centres would expose extremists and terrorists who wished to leave their organisations to the work of scholars whose work had been recognized as sound and legitimate. (<https://www.quilliaminternational.com>)

- 16:30 – 17:30: Search for Common Ground
Search for Common Ground (SFCG) was founded on the basis that conflict turns into violence when people focus on their differences rather than on their commonalities. SFCG seeks to find new ways of connecting people across these differences. SFCG first focused on facilitating cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union. Since its founding, the organization has expanded its work to 30 countries in Africa, Asia, the Middle East and parts of Eastern Europe. It employs around 600 staff coming from more than 40 countries. (<https://www.sfcg.org>)
